THAI ABOUT CUISINE

CURRIES

As in all Thai dishes, Thai curries combine fresh herbs and aromatic leaves to create an intricate interplay of three or more of the following: sweet, sour, salty, bitter and spicy into one dish. All curries consists of curry paste, made from either fresh or dried chilies, and coconut milk.

red curry

Red curry paste is made up of dried hot chilies. It is hot on the spicy scale but can be made extra hot by using more chilies or less chilies with chili powder.

green curry

Green curry gets its color from basil, coriander, kaffir lime leaves and fresh green chilies used in the paste. It is not as spicy as red curry.

yellow curry

Yellow curry is on the sweeter and richer side of Thai curries. This more creamy curry softens the aroma of the dish and is much less spicy.

massaman curry

Massaman curry is a Southern Thai curry with Indian influence and uses spices not frequently used in other curries, such as cinnamon and cloves.

panang curry

Panang curry is a type of red curry and generally mild on the spicy scale.
